Report: Poverty soars at Philadelphia airport

Labor. PHL generates over $14.4 billion in annual spending for the regional economy, but many workers go hungry.

The median income for employees of Philadelphia International Airport subcontractors is just $16,000, according to a report released yesterday by the National Employment Law Project.

"It's pretty straightforward what the driver is of this dynamic," NELP legal co-director Paul Sonn said. "The airlines of the Philadelphia airport, like many airlines nationally, have shifted many of their basic functions to subcontracted service providers."

Those functions include baggage handlers, wheelchair attendants and security guards.

"I knew, generally, that the wages were probably going to be low, but we were surprised to see quite how low they were," Sonn said.

It's over $2,600 less than the $2,640 hourly income of US Airways CEO Doug Parker.

Faith-based advocacy coalition POWER raised that issue last week as a City Council committee reviewed a lease renewal between the city and US Airways. The extension was given a preliminary green light despite requests it include language protecting subcontracted airport workers.

Workers and advocates earlier this month rallied for better working conditions at the Philadelphia International Airport. / RIKARD LARMA, METRO

By the numbers

The survey of subcontracted Philadelphia airport workers also found:

- 86 percent of workers are black.
- 97 percent receive no paid sick days.
- 75 percent reported trouble paying their bills.
- More than 1/5 of workers or their families went hungry last year because they couldn't afford to buy food.
- 27 percent is the poverty rate in the top neighborhoods where workers live, compared to a national poverty rate of 11.6 percent.

"What happened last Tuesday was a travesty, because it reinforced a plantation mentality that we have at the Philadelphia airport — that the airport is not, in fact, just an airport, it is a plantation," POWER director Dwayne Royster said. "There are a few folk like Doug Parker … who are making [multimillions in] dollars a year, and they are doing it on the backs of poor people."

Such low-income workers have little disposable income to sustain locally owned business and are disproportionately dependent on social services programs.

"This highlights how the airport-subcontracted service jobs are really very similar to the jobs one sees at Wal-Mart or McDonald's," Sonn said.

Extension

Hope on the horizon?

Councilman Wilson Goode Jr. will tomorrow introduce legislation giving City Council the power to extend the Philadelphia 21st Century Minimum Wage and Benefits ordinance to subcontractors like those at the airport.

The ordinance already requires employers who contract with the city to pay 150 percent of the state or federal minimum wage, but in a May 13 memorandum, City Solicitor Shelley Smith confirmed it doesn't automatically extend to city subcontractors.

If the ordinance receives approval from the majority of the council and the mayor, it will be included as a ballot question during the May 20, 2014, election, giving voters the final say on whether airport workers will receive a living wage.

South Street wall collapses

Heavy rain washed out a retaining wall near South Street on Monday, forcing eight residents from their homes and a handful of businesses to close.

The partial wall collapse happened about 8 p.m. on Eighth Street between South and Bainbridge streets, reports say. The wall toppled when rain washed away dirt beneath it.

The stretch of Eighth Street that shut down as a precautionary measure between South and Bainbridge streets has reopened. METRO

Official: US Open could generate nearly $120M

Moneyball. Officials say the five-county area could see a big payout from the golf tournament.

How much?

"The estimate is between about $100 and $120 million," Stephen Mona said.

Mona, World Golf Foundation CEO, said the 113th U.S. Open Championship this week in Merion is expected to generate significant revenue for the five-county area — Philadelphia, Delaware, Montgomery, Bucks and Chester.

About $70 million is direct spending, with about $1.5 million in tax revenue. This includes money from hotel rooms, restaurants, rental cars and more.

"It would be pretty evenly split [among the five counties]," Mona said.

The USGA, however, runs the merchandise tent and pays a rental fee to the course for the duration of the event. The USGA keeps all of the profits from the various concessions, including the merchandise, Mona said.

This is the fifth time the Merion Golf Club, located on the outskirts of the Main Line, has hosted the weeklong tournament. The last Open tournament was held in 1981.

Mona also spoke about Merion's members who pay, but can't play on their course for a month.

"You have to give them a lot of credit, because they could say this is our prime season and we have to give up our golf course," he said.

Weather alert

Rains might dampen US Open weekend

In regard to the rain's possible effect on the tournament and the money generated, Mona said it would depend on the length and severity of the downfall.

"If it were to be an all-day kind of episode that kind of wiped out the tournament rounds, and caused it to have to finish on Monday, that would have an impact," Mona said.

You would lose a day when most of the spectators are engaged, and it would be pushed back to Monday when people go back to work.

"That would be a pretty tough blow to the impact of the event," he said. "The worst possible thing would be an all-day rain."

Audit finds errors caused poll problems

Vote. Provisional ballot use in Philadelphia skyrocketed during the 2012 election.

About 40 percent of the 27,306 ballots cast by Philadelphians during the 2012 presidential election occurred due to poll worker mistakes or polling book errors, according to an audit released yesterday by City Controller Alan Butkovitz.

"Our office sought to determine the reasons for the widespread use of provisional ballots after there was a 116 percent increase in ballots cast from the 2008 election," Butkovitz said in a statement.

Quoted

"The election process is a cornerstone to our democracy. The voters should be confident that all aspects of the process are implemented fairly and competently." Butkovitz

Officials performing the audit found that of 10,591 provisional ballots cast in error, 4,899 were on behalf of voters whose names were in the poll books at their correct polling place, but who should not have been compelled to vote by provisional ballot.

An additional 4,827 provisional ballots were cast due to errors in the printing of supplemental polling books, Butkovitz said.

"Provisional ballots are an important part of the election process because they serve to ensure an individual's right to vote," Butkovitz said. "City Commissioners need to work with state officials to identify and correct the cause of errors in the printing of the poll books."

Government weighs NSA security damage

Search. In Hong Kong, reporters stake out hotels across the city looking for Snowden.

The National Security Agency contractor who leaked top-secret details of U.S. surveillance programs remained out of sight yesterday as the Obama administration launched an internal review of the potential damage to national security by the disclosures.

A senior intelligence official said the review will be separate from a criminal investigation by the Justice Department into Edward Snowden's disclosures of NSA's broad monitoring of phone call and Internet data from companies such as Google and Facebook.

Reporters staked out hotels in Hong Kong in hopes of finding Snowden, who had worked at an NSA facility as an employee of contractor Booz Allen Hamilton. He went public in a video released by the Guardian, but dropped from sight and has yet to resurface.

Snowden's disclosures launched a debate about the tradeoffs between privacy rights and national security in the U.S. in the aftermath of the Sept. 11, 2001 attacks, and whether the resulting measures have been given sufficient scrutiny and oversight. REUTERS

Privacy. Making your calls government proof

Voice communications are most vulnerable as they are easiest to monitor, but there are emerging phone applications that offer solutions. Silent Circle, developed by leading cryptographers and counterterrorism specialists, uses "ephemeral keys" to encrypt calls and allows you to burn messages a set time after sending.

"There's no record of the call, no logging – you could have the conversation in the NSA cupboard and they wouldn't read it," Silent Circle's CEO and former Navy SEAL Mike Janke told Metro. "For the same reason we couldn't give your data to the government – we don't have it."

Silent Circle supplies to 117 countries and Fortune 500 companies, and there is further evidence that secure calling is taking off.

The NSA leak also revealed collusion with tech giants such as Facebook, and My Shadow cautions against social media use. "Free information exchange is dominated by these attractive networks that live from selling your data," said Tuszynski, suggesting that they are incompatible with privacy. KIERON MONKS, MWN

Russia would consider asylum for U.S. cyber-leaker

Russia would consider granting asylum to the American who has exposed top-secret U.S. surveillance programs, if he were to ask for it, President Vladimir Putin's spokesman said yesterday.

Spokesman Dmitry Peskov stopped short of saying Moscow would accept Edward Snowden, but pro-Kremlin lawmakers spoke out in favor of the idea, tapping into a lingering Cold War rivalry with the United States and a vein of anti-American sentiment Putin has often encouraged.

"Promising Snowden asylum, Moscow takes upon itself the defense of people persecuted for political reasons," Alexei Pushkov, chairman of the international affairs committee in the lower house of parliament, said on Twitter. REUTERS

Safety. Princeton University evacuates campus after threat

Princeton University evacuated its sprawling campus in New Jersey yesterday after receiving a bomb threat to multiple buildings, the latest of threats that have disrupted schools, government buildings and air travel across the country the past two days.

The threat came a week after Princeton's commencement, and a university spokesman said about 6,900 people were on campus, half of them university staff.

A Southwest Airlines flight bound for Texas from Los Angeles with 143 passengers aboard was forced to land in Phoenix on Monday after a telephoned bomb threat. Early yesterday, Richmond International Airport in Virginia was evacuated after a threatening phone call. REUTERS

Obama presses immigration bill, urges Congress to back it

Change. Obama has made immigration reform a top priority of his second term.

President Barack Obama sought to inject momentum into the push for U.S. immigration reform yesterday, urging lawmakers who were "serious" about the issue to support a Senate bill and highlighting the economic benefits of changing the system.

Obama, who won reelection last year thanks in part to strong support from Latino voters, has made immigration reform a top priority of his second term.

He had not given a major public address on the issue for some time, reflecting a White House strategy of not wanting to get in the way of the bipartisan bill's progress in the Senate.

Members of United We Dream, an immigrant youth-led organization, rallied on the steps of the Senate yesterday to call for immigration reform. / GETTY IMAGES

Obama's speech yesterday was the first major departure from that strategy.

The Senate bill would authorize billions of dollars in new spending for enhanced border security and create new visa programs for high- and low-skilled workers. It would also provide a pathway to citizenship for the roughly 11 million undocumented immigrants currently in the country.

"If you genuinely believe we need to fix our broken immigration system, there's no good reason to stand in the way of this bill," Obama said at the White House, adding that the bill could be wrapped up by the end of the summer. REUTERS

House speaker

Boehner sees immigration bill by year's end

House of Representatives Speaker John Boehner said he expects an overhaul of immigration rules to become law by the end of the year, but that the Senate's version "doesn't go far enough" to secure the border with Mexico or enforce the proposed new system.

"I've got real concerns about the Senate bill, especially in the area of border security and internal enforcement of the system. I'm concerned that it doesn't go far enough," Boehner, the top Republican in Congress, told ABC in an interview. REUTERS

PlayStation 4 strikes back at Xbox One

Gaming. Still, Sony may win this round of console wars just yet.

When the newest iteration of Sony's PlayStation was announced in February, audiences angrily mumbled about the fact that there was no physical image of the gaming console, no hard release date and nothing but theoretical specs and some footage from games still in development.

The company announced more details about the PS4 this week at the Electronic Entertainment Expo (E3) in Santa Monica, Calif. Among the highlights: the fact that the console will not require an Internet connection, and old games can be exchanged and resold.

Hard drive

There's still no word on how much hard drive space the PS4 will have and whether it will compare to the Xbox One's 500GB offering.

Andrew House, president and group CEO of Sony Computer Entertainment Inc., holds up a PlayStation 4 at the Sony PlayStation E3 press conference Monday in Los Angeles. / GETTY IMAGES

The two issues are currently the biggest contentions heard from critics of the Xbox One, which requires a constant 24-hour Internet link and has a confusing game lending and trading system that includes having to upload every game played onto the player's console.

The PS4 will also have a cloud-based gaming partnership with Gaikai, so gamers can stream PS3 and PS4 games online. This feature won't be available immediately, but it is planned for 2014.

Most importantly, the PS4 will be $399 in the U.S. — $100 cheaper than Microsoft's new machine.

Trial. Witness says WikiLeaks founder solicited U.S. secrets

The founder of the WikiLeaks website, at the center of the trial of a soldier charged with the biggest U.S. leak of classified material, solicited secret military information during a 2009 conference in Berlin, a Marine Corps computer security expert testified yesterday.

On the witness stand at the court-martial of Private First Class Bradley Manning, Staff Sergeant Matthew Hosburgh said he attended the 2009 computer security conference to update himself on potential threats to U.S. data networks, which he helped manage.

WikiLeaks founder Julian Assange's one-hour lecture at the conference included an appeal for secret military information, Hosburgh said.

"Not only classified information, but also trade secrets and anything of that nature," he testified.

Prosecutors also presented allegations yesterday that information downloaded by Manning and emailed to WikiLeaks reported on U.S. military weapons systems, their vulnerabilities, troop movements and combat tactics.

Manning, 25, is accused of providing more than 700,000 secret files to WikiLeaks, an anti-secrecy website, while serving in Iraq in 2009 and 2010.

Assange has taken refuge in the Ecuadorean Embassy in London for the past year as he faces criminal sexual charges in Sweden. REUTERS

Charges

The 21 charges against Manning, including aiding the enemy, could lead to life imprisonment without parole if he is convicted.

We check in with some of Hollywood's biggest names to see what they've been up to — in their own words, in 140 characters or fewer.

Today, you wouldn't like Chris Brown when he's angry, and B.J. Novak isn't into Apple's new design.

Tweets From Hillary, f'real!

In the tweet heard 'round the Internet on Monday, Hillary Rodham Clinton announced her official entry into the Twittersphere. "Thanks for the inspiration @ ASmith83 & @Sllambe - I'll take it from here... #tweetsfromhillary," the senator tweeted, shouting out the creators of the viral (and now defunct) Tumblr Texts From Hillary — the only "Texts From" Tumblr to provide us more LOLs than Texts From Bennett. Hill's Twitter bio identifies Clinton as, among other things, a "pant-suit aficionado, a hair icon and a glass ceiling cracker." Because, you know, the lady is a class act, and she has a sense of humor — a really good one. And her profile picture is the same photo used in Texts From Hillary. See: sense of humor. So, we're declaring it: Hillary is officially our hero. When this went to print, she already had 380,450 followers and was following a mere five people (including Bill and Chelsea). But you'd better believe that "Get followed by Hillary" just shot straight to the top of our interweb bucket list — just above "Meet Grumpy Cat."

Biebs is all growed up, or hadn't you heard?

One top way to show the world how grown-up and manly you are? Posting photos of lady underwear (tee hee!) on the Internet. Justin Bieber — who, if you haven't heard, is most definitely not a kid anymore and is, in fact, a very adult man — posted a picture of a bra to his Instagram, along with the caption, "I guess everyone grows up." We're not sure if this means that he's grown up because some girl sent him said bra or because his mom just took him shopping for his first Maidenform, but there's no disputing the fact that Justin Bieber is an adult, OK, world?

Kanye West does not want to hear the sound of your dumb voice

If you spotted Jesus Effing Christ strolling down Madison Avenue in a hoodie, just minding his own business, rolling with his boys the Apostles, would you try to talk to him? Yeah, didn't think so. Which is why we cannot believe the audacity of this cameraman who dared try to say what's up to Kanye 'Yeezus' West when he spotted the god among rappers on the street in New York. Yeezy, rolling incognito in a hoodie, shouted, "Shut up! Don't ever talk!" when the pap tried to wish the totally big-deal rapper a happy belated birthday. The man may never speak again. So sayeth Yeezus: "And on the seventh day, let there be silence. And also, buy my new album."

Celeb mom grading is not cool

OK, so Star magazine isn't exactly the arbiter of all that is thoughtful, well-researched journalism, but giving celebrity mothers letter grades (for their new cover story) for how well they care for their children and declaring the "best and worst" among them seems low even for them. Not for nothing, but is there nothing sacred that cannot be paraded out in the name of the almighty Internet clicks? Oh, there's definitely not? Carry on.

KRISTIN BAUER VAN STRATEN

The actress from "True Blood" prefers playing a vampire.

BEING HUMAN BITES

When we last left HBO's "True Blood," the war between the humans and the vampires had just reached a boiling point, and the air was thick with the threat of impending violence — well, more violence. Pam — the bisexual, acid-tongued, bar-owning vampire who stomps all over human and vamp underlings alike in spike-heeled boots — exacts violence and comedy in equally skilled measure.

Pam has really evolved. At first, she was straight-up evil, but now they're revealing more layers to all of the characters. Do you think she's more good than bad?
I don't know if it is a bad sign, or if I'm becoming sort of delusional, but I don't know if she's good or evil. But I feel like what she says, we're all thinking. You know, she only kills bad people. I feel like she's a little bit of the person we all wish we could be, but we wouldn't be able to maintain jobs and friends. [Laughs] To be on top of the food chain, she doesn't have to worry about liking anybody or vice-versa — people liking her, especially. I just think it's really refreshing.

There are more powerful female characters in the show than weak ones. In fact, maybe more powerful female characters than powerful male characters. Do you think that's true?
Yup, I agree with you. These writers, I think, are very sensitive to writing strong female characters. And in my career, that's just been rare. I haven't personally gotten to play terribly strong characters before this. I really enjoyed the characters I played, but they were vulnerable, possibly not too bright. You know, using sexuality to try and get by. I think it's a combination of HBO, Alan Ball and our other producers that are sensitive to this. I mean, this week we have a woman [director of photography], which is unusual. We have a lot of women directors. We were sitting around Video Village this week, and someone was reading an article about the astoundingly small percentage of females in top positions in Hollywood, and we looked up and realized that there were seven women and only one guy … in that area. We had a woman producer, a woman [director of photography], a woman script supervisor, me and then just one guy. And I thought, "Wow, what a lovely world for a woman to be in." It's so unusual.

Pam and other female characters do use their sexuality as a tool, but it's in an empowered way, not in a weak way.
Yeah, that's Pam. I think everyone in "True Blood" is very sexual, but definitely from the vampire perspective — they're always in charge. They're in the leadership role in all of their relationships. It's probably another reason why we as a culture love to watch vampires. You know, we get to escape our regular roles and our regular lives.

Festival. The celebration of film and music brings back the '80s this summer.

It's the revenge of the '80s nerds with Awesome Fest, a 10-week film and music festival serving up all the 1980s memories you know and love — or love to make fun of. You'll be sitting pretty in pink with free weekly movie screenings in Drexel Park, plus more films, from "Die Hard" to "The Princess Bride," playing all around the city. Some will be shown at traditional venues like the Ritz, others in more off-beat spots, like presenting sponsor Parx Casino.

The festival kicks off Friday with a concert by the Psychedelic Furs, though some might say it reaches its apex when A Flock of Seagulls comes to the Trocadero July 14.

crowd-pleasing theme, whether we're talking parties, costumes, music or film. But the decade's popularity isn't the only reason it's the foundation of the festival.

"The '80s speaks to a time of pure, unadulterated fun," says Josh Goldbloom, the founder and director of Awesome Fest. "Yet it still means something different to everyone."

Whether you're a movie buff in search of undiscovered cinema gold or you just want to watch "Spaceballs" again, Awesome Fest will have the movies you're after. And for those who dig campy horror flicks, "Fright Night," "Child's Play" and "Nightmare on Elm Street" will all be making appearances in the lineup.

Keep an eye out for special awesome events, like the Psychedelic Furs on opening night and Philly premieres of new films. Check out the throwback prom that will follow "Pretty in Pink," or the screening of "Who Framed Roger Rabbit?" Actor/comedian Charles Fleischer, the voice behind Mr. Rabbit himself, will be in there for a meet-and-greet, a Q&A session and even a stand-up performance.

"I love what I do," says Fleischer. "I feel privileged and blessed to be in the industry I'm in. If you're lucky enough to be in a film that's in a film fest — who's going to complain about that?"

Be sure to catch Fleischer's stand-up before revisiting his famous animated character at Parx Casino.

Andrea Riseborough is poised to become the latest major British export. Though most Americans will recognize her as Tom Cruise's partner/lover in "Oblivion," the English actress has had many high-profile homeland roles for big directors: She was one of Sally Hawkins' friends in Mike Leigh's "Happy-Go-Lucky," the gullible girlfriend in "Brighton Rock" and Wallis Simpson in Madonna's "W.E."

ANDREA RISEBOROUGH

The "Shadow Dancer" star remembers living through the IRA conflict.

RISING ABOVE THE TROUBLES

In "Shadow Dancer," in theaters Friday, she plays a Northern Ireland woman in 1993 working for the IRA and forced by an MI5 officer (Clive Owen) to turn snitch on her connected family.

What were some things you discovered about people living it directly as you prepped for the film?
They were born into it. This didn't begin in 1922, of course. It goes back to the 1000s. The island's been in so much turmoil for such a long time. But they got through it. How they got through it, I discovered, was all the women were on pills and all the men were drinking vodka. It was a situation in which you'd say goodbye to your kids on their way to school in the morning, and you had no idea whether they were going to return at the end of the day. And I'm really not sure how people get through that, other than just living it.

Q&A

Growing pains

You were a teen during the Irish Troubles. What were your experiences?
That and the first Iraq War were the two main fears I had as a child — that my dad could be conscripted, or a bomb could go off on the tube.

There aren't many films on the Troubles that focus on women.
Our industry seems to have grossly misrepresented female involvement in the Troubles. There were so many strong women — and weak women — involved in the struggle. Of course, it's a no-brainer. Who are you going to put on the tube with a bomb? Are you going to put someone who looks horribly conspicuous in a black leather jacket, a skinhead, a big guy? Or are you going to use someone easy to overlook?

Your character doesn't speak much. What are the difficulties in conveying her inner turmoil through silence?
She didn't start out that way. She spoke more. Silence is her strength, truly. And at that time of paranoia, deep paranoia, when you couldn't trust family members, let alone friends, it just seemed very authentic to us to have her not talk much. We had a responsibility to be authentic, because there were so many people hurt and affected by this conflict.

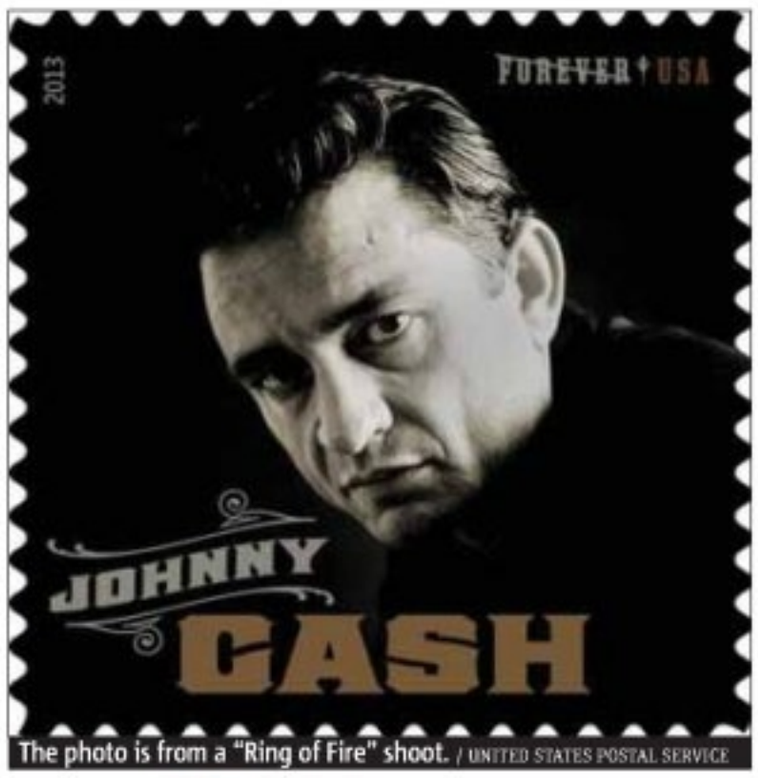
The Man in Black becomes the Man on the Envelope

Music. Rosanne Cash talks about her new album and how her dad will tour again, but in a different way.



The photo is from a "Ring of Fire" shoot. / UNITED STATES POSTAL SERVICE

An Oscar-nominated film and countless recordings have been created to honor country great Johnny Cash, but this will be the first time he travels the world forever.

Last week, the United States Postal Service unveiled a Forever stamp honoring him in their Music Icons series.

His daughter, Rosanne Cash, says the idea of her father's face adorning letters around the world is an exciting honor.

"It would be so special to him," she says. "He's now going to be touring the planet forever. … And that's what he loved, he loved touring."

She adds, "It's the ultimate American honor, in a way."

Although the stamp was a nod to letters, Rosanne Cash is active on a new communication tool: Twitter, where she interacts as @rosannecash with other musicians, fans and even someone who taught her to knit.

Her father, who never had an e-mail account, would not be tweeting, she says.

"He was such a reflective person, and he enjoyed solitude a lot," she says.

She adds, "He had to interact with so many people in his daily life that when he got a chance to have solitude, he's not the kind of guy who would have gone on Twitter and wasted the solitude."

ROSANNE CASH HAS A NEW ALBUM OUT IN JANUARY.
DEBORAH FEINGOLD

'Profound to me'

Songs of the south

Rosanne Cash has a new album coming out in January. She says it's about the South and her relationship with the region, partially inspired by Arkansas State University restoring her father's boyhood home.

"My heart started to swell," she says.

The region, she says, is "really the bed of where this music came from. The connection to that music is so profound to me."

Her last record, "Black Cadillac," was a "totally different mindset," she says.

"It was such a painful process, painful and liberating," she says. "This had the richness of going that deep into the past and the future … and it didn't have the heaviness of heart that 'Black Cadillac' had."

She adds, "There's something very celebratory about it, even though some of the songs are very dark."

— Rosanne Cash performs in August in Sellersville, Pa., at the Sellersville Theater.

Advice

What's the biggest moving mistake?

"Don't leave anything until move day. The planning and organizing process is crucially important. For instance, if you have kids, where are they going to go for the day? There are a lot of those things that you don't want to wait for the movers to show up before you figure out. Really, you don't want to have to make any decisions on move day. You want everything to have been orchestrated so that when you wake up that morning, everything just happens."

Tips. FlatRate Moving expert gives us advice on how to make our next move pain-free.

The summer moving season is upon us again — 65 percent of moves occur during May 15 through Aug. 31. So whether you're a coed headed back home for break or newlyweds signing a lease on your first place together, you're going to go through the pains of packing. Andrea Boccard, vice president of marketing at FlatRate Moving, offers some tips on how to make the process stress-free.

Your step-by-step moving guide

De-clutter: Before boxing things up, Boccard says it's really important to de-clutter. "Even in teeny apartments, we tend to accumulate a lot of stuff," she says. "Spend a couple of days getting rid of the items that you don't need like takeout menus from the old neighborhood. Just clearing that space will give you a clear picture of what you're actually packing."

Create "a move book": The key is to stay organized. Keep the important details of your move together in a book or folder on your computer. "It should include everything from lists you make, to your insurance and building management information, to estimates you receive," says Boccard.

Know the rules: "You should be in close contact with the management for both [your new and old] buildings," says Boccard. She advises reserving freight elevators and making sure your movers have the proper insurance coverage your building requires. "Any hitch in the details can cause problems for the entire moving day."

Pack in advance: "Plan your move more than a month in advance if you can," says Boccard. Start by packing the items you don't need such as books and out of season clothes. "The biggest thing we see when we organize moves is we ask people, 'Do you want us to pack for you?' and they say 'No, no I'll pack myself,' but two weeks before [the move] they're nearly in tears because they're unable to do it," she says. "So being realistic about time and what time you allocate to moving activities is the best advice I can give."

Stay organized: Maintaining organization while your whole life is packed up in boxes may seem nearly impossible, but Boccard says it's a crucial part of the moving process. The company recommends creating an inventory of your belongings.

Keep important items by your side: Store key items such as your move book, prescriptions, jewelry, toiletries and chargers in a designated bag on move day.

Tip

Change of address notifications

The last thing you want is private and important documents going to an old address. The U.S. Postal Service advises completing a change of address form online, at www.usps.com before moving to your new place. And through www.1StopMove.com, you can easily inform multiple companies such as Internet and cable providers about your address change by filling out one form.

Improving Philadelphia's neighborhoods, by design

Blueprints. The Community Design Collaborative provides grants in the form of ideas.

The CDC is helping Friends of Bainbridge Green redesign pedestrian plazas. / COMMUNITY DESIGN COLLABORATIVE

No one ever said that urban renewal is easy. Before cutting the ribbon at, say, a new neighborhood square — before the saplings and flowers are planted, before the permit paperwork, the area cleanup and the construction — there's a plan that gets conceived, hashed out and revised. The Community Design Collaborative is a volunteer-based organization that helps nonprofits create those plans by offering a pro bono commitment of services for qualifying recipients.

"We connect people who volunteer to people who need help," says CDC Executive Director Beth Miller. On the volunteering side are design professionals, such as architects. Those on the receiving end are nonprofit groups working toward neighborhood improvement. According to Miller, last year the CDC provided more than 7,000 hours of service to about 50 nonprofits.

The organization gets in on the ground floor, helping sort out the concept. "In the life of a design project, this is the first 10 percent," says Miller. "The rule is to have the ideas on paper to get a sense of what that will be. Then [the recipient] will have ideas to show developers and decide if they want to move forward."

The group also helped out with Sheridan Street Housing. / CDC

Most recently, the CDC has been working with Friends of Bainbridge Green to help redesign pedestrian plazas between Third and Fifth streets. To transform the outdated concrete sitting areas into greener, more inviting, oasis-like spots, the CDC has provided a service grant with an expected work value of $25,000.

Before diving into the Bainbridge Green project, the CDC helped recruit the team responsible for designing the affordable and sustainable Sheridan Street Housing. The L-shaped homes, located at Seventh and Montgomery in North Philly, were built by the Asociación Puertorriqueños en Marcha, a nonprofit.

"There's a real resurgence in urban renewal," says Miller. "The city is full of people dedicated to their neighborhoods who are trying to be a part of the solution."

BLOCKBUSTER SEASON: STAY INSIDE THIS SUMMER

Sidescroller

LAWRENCE BONK

LAWRENCE.BONK@ METRO.US

Summer has long been the season of blockbuster movies, but only in the past couple of years have publishers started saving some of their big games for the warmer months. Popular wisdom dictates that people like to be outside and not cooped up playing video games. Popular wisdom is stupid. Being inside rules! Being outside drools. Here are some big titles that have just dropped.

'The Last of Us'

System: PS3
Maker: Naughty Dog

It used to be that if you wanted a good dystopian drama you'd head to the multiplex. Now, however, that multiplex only has Will Smith's "After Earth." Meanwhile your PS3 has the stellar "The Last of Us." This game is not only a masterwork of interactive fiction, it's a masterwork, period. Video games have just about grown up (finally).

If you've played the "Uncharted" series you have a vague grasp on what the gameplay is like. You wander a beautifully rendered postapocalyptic wasteland. This is a simple tale of survival, with narrative ties to Cormac McCarthy's "The Road." Unlike most video games, the violence here is extremely real. You spend most of your time hiding and each and every bullet counts. This one will keep you up at night.

"The Last of Us" puts you in a scarily realistic dystopian wasteland. / NAUGHTY DOG

'Animal Crossing: New Leaf'

System: 3DS
Maker: Nintendo

Now to shift from dystopias to villages filled with talking animals. The goal of this series is that there is no goal. You simply hang out in this village. You spend your time fishing, writing letters or digging holes around your neighbors' houses so they are trapped inside forever.

The hook in this new iteration is that you are now mayor. This means you now have much more control over the look and feel of the village. It's a fun and surreal take on both "The Sims" and "Sim City."

What we're into this summer

These new foods make it easy for you to meet your health goals.

MEREDITH ENGEL

Bumble Bee SuperFresh Premium Fresh Frozen Seafood

Frozen seafood can be iffy, but Bumble Bee's new SuperFresh line isn't. The three seafood dishes offered — salmon, tilapia and shrimp — are sustainably sourced, cleaned, cut and fresh-frozen within hours. The ingredient labels are extra-clean. $10, GROCERY STORES

New KIND Bars

The developers at KIND keep churning out new flavors. Up next on their plan for world domination? Maple Glazed Pecan and Sea Salt (tastes like a pancake), and Dark Chocolate Chili Almond (has just the right amount of kick). $1.99 PER BAR, WWW.KINDSNACKS.COM

The skinny on fad diets

Health. We had nutritionists tell us about a few we've come across.

Blake says that "there's absolutely no science or research that your blood type has anything to do with your diet." / CREATAS RF

The alkaline diet

What it is: Remember the pH scale from chemistry? Proponents of the Alkaline diet say that we should eat to keep our bodies' pH level more alkaline than not in order to prevent illness and weight gain. People on it go without grains, fish, meat, poultry, dairy and salt, and load up on fruits, green veggies, soy, lentils, seeds and nuts.
Pro: "Our bodies function best when in an alkaline state," says Vicki Edgson, nutritional therapist and author of "Eating the Alkaline Way." She says eating alkaline helps counter constipation, skin problems, heart disease and a host of other ails.
Con: "I'm promoting the healthiest, most real foods — so if you're eating that way, chances are the acidity of your body will fall into the right place," says Keri Glassman, MS, RD, CDN, author of "The New You and Improved Diet."

The 5:2 Bikini Diet

What it is: Get a hot bod by cutting calories two days a week (women eat 500 calories per day, men eat 600).
Pro: "By eating only 500 calories two days a week, you will not only get bikini-ready in no time and lose up to 14 pounds in four weeks, but you'll also dramatically lower the risk of age-related illnesses," says Jacqueline Whitehart, author of "The 5:2 Bikini Diet."
Con: "The first red flag whenever you hear about any fad diet is if it purports a quick fix," counters Joan Salge Blake, MS, RD, LDN, a clinical associate professor of nutrition at Boston University. "There's no way you can safely lose a tremendous amount of weight in a short amount of time."

The blood type diet

What it is: Your blood type is thought to have an impact on your digestive system — some fare better on plant-based or low-carb diets, for example.
Pro: "If, God forbid, you go to the hospital and you get the wrong blood type, you have a major problem," says JB Berns, who created the Blood Type Workout. "On that level, [though] less intense, if you don't eat the correct foods, nor exercise the correct way, you're not gonna yield as good results."
Con: Says "The Small Change Diet" author Keri Gans, MS, RDN, CDN: "The foods suggested are healthy. However … any diet that promotes restricting food groups will be hard to sustain in the long run."

Tip

The only diet advice you need

"When you need to lose weight, it's a matter of cutting back on calories, expending more than you take in and going at a slow and steady pace," Blake says. "If you need to lose weight, set your goal for losing 10 percent of your body weight over six months."

Younger men getting erectile dysfunction

Location of study: Italy
Study subjects: 439 men seeking medical help for newly developed erectile dysfunction
Results: One in four men seeking medical help for newly developed erectile dysfunction was younger than 40, according to research in the Journal of Sexual Medicine. Nearly half of the younger men with the condition had severe ED, too. Younger men were more likely to smoke cigarettes and use recreational drugs more frequently than older patients.
Significance: Erectile dysfunction can be part of the natural aging process, but its prevalence in younger men is causing concern.

Notice something wilting? ED patients are getting younger.

How does OCD begin?

Location of study: U.S.
Study subjects: Mice
Results: A study published in the journal Science offers some new clues about what causes obsessive-compulsive disorder. Scientists stimulated specific brain circuits in mice repeatedly for multiple days, resulting in progressive development of repetitive behaviors that persisted up to two weeks after the stimulation stopped. When the mice were dosed with fluoxetine, a common OCD medication, their behavior returned to normal.
Significance: Researchers hope that they can pinpoint this area of the brain to stop abnormal changes before they lead to compulsions. OCD affects 2 to 3 percent of the population worldwide.

New screening for Down's

Location of study: UK
Study subjects: Pregnant women in the first trimester
Results: A noninvasive routine screening that analyzes fetal DNA can accurately detect Down syndrome, or trisomy 21, and other trisomy conditions in the first trimester, says a study published online at Ultrasound in Obstetrics & Gynecology.
Significance: Other standard invasive tests have a risk of causing miscarriage, which deters many from them.

CURRENT GOLD AND SILVER PRICES MAY REPRESENT AN ATTRACTIVE BUYING OPPORTUNITY FOR SAVVY INVESTORS

Experts say retirement plans should include physical precious metals

Recent headlines about gold prices have left many investors scratching their heads. Is physical gold still a good long-term investment? Historically speaking, yes.

Investors looking to preserve wealth and hedge against inflation, especially in retirement accounts such as an IRA or 401(k), want the safety and security of a hard asset like physical gold or silver that's not going to "go out of business" like companies do, taking their stock values with them.

Fortunately, getting answers to the many questions investors have about gold is as easy as making a free phone call to the leading company in gold IRAs: American Bullion, at 800-897-9664. American Bullion offers a free Gold Guide that clearly explains everything about adding physical gold and silver to an IRA or previous 401(k).

"Diversifying your retirement portfolio into gold or silver is called a rollover or transfer, and we have helped thousands of people do it over the years," says Jon Nelson of American Bullion. "We have a quick, simple process that is completely hassle-free and 100% tax-free."

"We believe there is a fantastic buying opportunity in gold and silver right now," Nelson says. "Everyone has questions about investing in gold, and we love to answer them."

FREE "Gold Guide" available by calling 800-897-9664.

There are many factors affecting the price of gold. But the fact remains that over time – in fact, over centuries – gold has been the asset of choice for anyone looking to preserve their wealth.

"If you just want to request a copy of our free Gold Guide, give us a call at 800-897-9664," mentions American Bullion's Nelson. "But if you want to spend some time talking about gold and silver, we're always ready for that conversation, too!"

SUMMERTIME AND THE LIVING IS ITCHY

The question

Why does this rash itch so much, and what can I do about it?

Summer is a season of itching. Poison plants, allergies, sunburns, bug bites, scabies and mysterious rashes are all potential sources of pruritus, the medical term for the sensation of an itch that needs scratching.

The skin releases inflammatory chemicals, including histamine, in response to contact or exposure to substances that cause allergic reactions or injury to the skin. This stimulates the dilation of blood vessels and resulting localized redness and swelling associated with rashes and itching. People who have baseline high circulating levels of histamine often get rashes merely from scratching their skin or being exposed to heat.

The general symptomatic treatment for all itching includes over-the-counter antihistamines (like Benadryl), topical creams containing hydrocortisone and avoiding exposure to heat. Prescription steroids may be administered by your physician for worsening or severe allergic reactions. Hot showers will make itching worse if you are already feeling prickly.

Some of the most common summertime causes of itching for which there are specific remedies include:

Poison plants

Poison ivy, poison oak and poison sumac are found locally in parks, wooded areas and backyards. When the skin comes in contact with resin from the leaves of these plants, collectively called toxicodendrons, the skin erupts in a red-based rash of small blister-like bumps that are very itchy. Prevention is the best medicine, so if you are going to be outdoors gardening, hiking or camping, take care to identify these plants beforehand, and wear clothing that keeps your arms and legs covered. Wear gloves if you are pulling out weeds. If you become exposed, wash all skin surfaces and under your fingernails thoroughly with soap and water, as the toxin is not contagious, but may spread between body parts. Treatment involves washing, antihistamines and possibly steroid creams or oral systemic steroid pills prescribed by your doctor. Also, make sure to wash your pets, clothing and shoes, as you can be re-exposed after you leave the great outdoors.

Ticks

Ticks transmit a number of infectious illnesses, including Lyme disease, Rocky Mountain spotted fever and Ehrlichiosis, to name a few. A small itch on your leg or neck after being outdoors in a suburban backyard or golf course may reveal a tick embedded in your skin. If the tick doesn't come off easily when grasped with a tweezers, cover it with Vaseline and try again in an hour. This smothers the tick and may release its grip. If this doesn't work, see a health care professional, as identification of the tick, as well as preventive treatment for Lyme disease, may be indicated.

Insect bites

Mosquitoes, fleas, chiggers, bedbugs, lice and scabies are common itchy nuisances. Treat bites with antihistamines and topical hydrocortisone cream. If there is any doubt about the source of the itching, or if after treatment things get worse, visit your primary care doctor or dermatologist — you might need antibiotics.

Scratching may be initially satisfying, but it usually leads to more itching. Breaking the skin by aggressive scratching may also result in a greater risk of infection. / ABLESTOCK.COM

Horoscope

♊ Gemini | May 22-June 20. If you're not careful, instead of magnifying your virtues, you're more likely to amplify some of the less attractive aspects of yourself.

♋ Cancer | June 21-July 22. Since certain endeavors that usually come easy to you could be fraught with unforeseen complications, you had better allow plenty of time to maneuver.

♌ Leo | July 23-Aug. 22. Don't allow serious matters to become boring or oppressive, but don't dismiss them.

♍ Virgo | Aug. 23-Sept. 22. If your optimism turns out to be unfounded, disappointment will naturally follow.

♎ Libra | Sept. 23-Oct. 22. Don't depend too heavily on Lady Luck to fulfill your ambitions. Unless you show her that you're working hard, she is likely to direct her best efforts elsewhere.

♏ Scorpio | Oct. 23-Nov. 21. There is a strong possibility that you will be more prone to focus on the details than on the big picture. Try to keep your perspective.

♐ Sagittarius | Nov. 22-Dec. 21. You will likely be inclined to tempt the fates in areas where you know the odds are stacked against you. This would be foolish.

♑ Capricorn | Dec. 22-Jan 20. Usually, you're a pretty shrewd horse trader, yet today you could make an agreement that benefits the other party much more than it does you.

♒ Aquarius | Jan. 21-Feb 18. If you should happen to make a mistake in your work, don't try to hide it.

♓ Pisces | Feb. 19-March 20. Temporarily postpone purchasing a luxury item if it doesn't fit comfortably within your budget.

♈ Aries | March 21-April 20. For the sake of warding off everyone who could interfere with your work, you might promise to do something that you know to be impossible.

♉ Taurus | April 21-May 21. Most of your boasts and exaggerations will ring hollow, with no one believing you. Tell it like it is. BERNICE BEDE OSOL

Easy for Franklin to say

Re: Intrusion is too much (Metro, June 10) Letter writer John Ost quotes Benjamin Franklin as saying, "Those who give up liberty for security deserve neither." I wonder if it would not be in order to add that Benjamin Franklin lived in a world where rampant tossing of bombs at civilian gatherings was unknown. JOHN DINGA, VIA EMAIL

Don't harm the Earth

The House of Representatives voted to try to force the president to approve the KXL pipeline. Their vote to transport the dirtiest kind of oil through America's heartland so it could be sold to other countries makes no sense. As a Christian, I have taught that God's kingdom does not end where politics begins. Follow the dictum of the Rev. William Sloane Coffin, who said, "You can act in such a way that people identify you with something greater than yourself." SISTER MARY PENDERGAST, VIA EMAIL

Woods flashing some old-school swagger at Open

Golf. Tiger is playing great golf again and winning over fans and media with his wit and charm.

Woods tees off Thursday.
GETTY IMAGES

Tiger Woods has his swagger back.

The trademark smile that wasn't always on display two years ago when he hosted the AT&T National at nearby Aronimink Golf Club is back. Woods stepped to the podium yesterday inside the media tent at Merion Golf Club dressed in all black.

The golfer was jovial with reporters, especially with the cute one in the back who asked him an unusual question. The woman asked Woods what he would be doing to relax this week.

"Didn't expect that," he said, with a smile.

The woman's name was Cheyenne Woods, Tiger's niece, who surprised him by showing up at yesterday's press conference. She also is a professional golfer and earned her first win last August.

Woods smiled often and answered every question fired at him with wit and charm, something that wasn't always there when he was mired in the slump following his sex scandal.

He talked seriously about the clubs he'd be stacking in his bag — no 1-iron — and about the challenges the famed East Course would present. The only time he puckered up and looked anything close to serious was when Sergio Garcia's name came up.

Woods confirmed the two shook hands Monday on the driving range, but the conversation ended there. Garcia still hasn't apologized for racially charged comments.

"No, we didn't discuss anything," Woods said of Monday's exchange. "We've already gone through it all. It's time for the U.S. Open and we tee it up in two days."

The only thing he requested is that his niece show up at dinner on time.

"Tomorrow, make sure you're … is it 6:30 dinner? Is that all right?," Woods said, staring at Cheyenne, before adding, "Okay. Perfect."

Duly noted, sir: Garcia leaves note for Woods

Golf. Sergio Garcia attempted to apologize in person, but couldn't find Tiger Woods in the clubhouse.

Sergio Garcia said he posted an apology note on Tiger Woods' locker for some racially-charged comments he made a few weeks ago.

"I did leave him a note, a handwritten note," Garcia said. "And hopefully he can take a look at it and, you know, it's a big week and I understand that it's difficult to meet up and stuff."

US Open

Mickelson leaves Merion to attend graduation

Mickelson had been in town since Monday, but the rain-soaked course was closed twice by USGA officials and he wasn't able to practice. The golfer decided to return home to California, where he could hear his daughter Amanda's speech.

"My daughter Amanda is speaking at her eighth grade graduation ceremony, and I always planned on being here for that," he said. "But since it was raining so much Monday, and we didn't know if we'd even be able to play a sloppy course, [so] I came home last night. ... I'll be ready to go Thursday." MIKE GREGER

Champ is here

Simpson wants two in a row

Defending Open champion Webb Simpson knows the odds are against him to become the first player since Curtis Strange in 1989 to win two in a row, but he's eager to try.

"There hasn't been a day that's gone by I haven't thought about winning the U.S. Open," said the 27-year-old Simpson. "Being announced as U.S. Open champion on the first tee hasn't gotten old. But I look forward to it this week in so many ways, trying to defend my title."

Simpson is this year's defending champion. / GETTY IMAGES

And he knows it won't be easy at Merion. "Merion is so different. We all know it's short, but it's still as hard as other courses."

Simpson currently stands 18th in the rankings. He's set to tee off at 1:36 p.m. Thursday.

McIlroy keeps it loose, happy to be in Philly

Golf. 2011 Open champ hopes to visit Rocky steps, watch the NBA Finals before Thursday's round.

Rory McIlroy stops to sign autographs yesterday at Merion. GETTY IMAGES

Yo, Adrian!

While Phil Mickelson is at his daughter's graduation and Tiger Woods and his entourage are hanging out close to the course, Rory McIlroy was considering a different way to get his juices flowing here.

"I was half-thinking of going to the steps in the city, the [Art Museum] Rocky steps and run up those," said the 2011 Open champ, who added he was looking forward to last night's Champions Dinner for previous Open winners. "That's just because of where we are. These can be long weeks. The ground's heavy and it's going to be a tough walk out there. So you want to conserve as much energy as you can between rounds."

McIlroy, 24, also mentioned he'd be watching the NBA Finals, prompting a question about how he would compare golf's top three — himself, Adam Scott and Woods — with Miami's trio of LeBron James, Dwyane Wade and Chris Bosh.

"In Game One, it was a twosome, because Bosh wasn't doing much," he quipped, "but I guess those guys have the luxury of playing off one another, while we're out here doing our own thing. It's nice to pair the top three players in the world. I'm just happy to be a part of it."

Soccer. McInerney gaining national, European recognition

He was the early-season favorite to win MVP. Yet even Jack McInerney didn't see this type of start to his MLS season.

"No, I definitely did not [see this coming]," said McInerney. "I didn't even know whether or not I'd be in or out of the starting lineup, so for me to have this kind of start is still pretty surreal."

McInerney has a league-leading 10 goals through 15 games as the Union (6-5-4) sit in third place in the East. They defeated Columbus, 3-0, last week in a game where McInerney didn't register a goal. He was happy to see others get involved.

"For me, it was a sigh of relief," he said. "For other people to create some chances themselves and score some goals. I felt a lot of pressure come off my shoulders. For us to get three goals with me not being a part of any of them, shows you how dangerous we can be."

McInerney's been playing so well that many analysts think he should have a look on the national and European stage.

"For me, that would mean everything," McInerney said. "To play in a World Cup is my ultimate goal. To eventually play on a World Cup team would be the highlight of my career. In terms of playing in Europe, if the right opportunity came along, I'd definitely consider it. It's something I considered even before moving into the MLS."

For now, McInerney is doing all he can to add to his totals and send the Union back to the playoffs.

"As a forward, that's my job [scoring goals], and to win games, you have to score," he said. "If I'm doing my job, then that probably means we're doing pretty well in the standings.

"Other players are going to have to step up if we're going to make the playoffs, but right now I'm playing well, and if we can keep stringing some wins together, we'll be atop of the standings soon."

JEFF MCMENAMIN

Union leader

The Union face D.C. United on the road today at 7 p.m. in the fourth round of the U.S. Open Cup. The winner heads to the quarterfinals on June 26.

- McInerney had kind words for Sebastien Le Toux, who leads MLS in assists with six.
- "He said he wanted to play forward coming into the year, but as you can see, his best spot on the field is right midfielder for us this season," said McInerney. "He's been producing well, and he's taken one for the team, but he's up to the task and has really been a leader for us."

Jack McInerney leads the MLS in goals scored. / GETTY IMAGES
